KPFK SWITCHBOARD

(818) 985-2711

9 AM - 5 PM, Monday - Friday

Dear Listener,

I'm one of the people of this world who observes two New Years: one normally celebrated on January 1st; the other is celebrated 'round about now (it varies since it's a lunar occasion), known as Chinese New Year. So with a fresh set of resolutions in mind, let me set the record straight on some apparent discrepancies. Though KPFK experienced a new high in pledges during our Fall Fund Drive, we still have a tight money situation. Here's how that happened.

While listener support is growing, it does not offset two forces which impact our annual budget. The first is a general decline in federal support of public radio (amounting to a decrease of $30,000 for us); the second is rising costs (amounting to perhaps another $30,000 short fall). The result: KPFK doesn't keep pace with inflation, and we don't have discretionary funds with which to grow.

Painfully, we decided last fall that KPFK's subscription rates would have to increase. While rates had not risen in more than five years, we were falling behind inflation despite the growth in our listener support. We continued to debate the amount of that increase until January, but finally concluded that the new rates would be $50 for a regular working adult subscription, $25 for those on a fixed income and $135 for the Film Club.

I hope you understand that we do not take these decisions lightly and our goal remains that of serving you, an audience of varying means, who want to know more about the world we live in.

While growth can be beneficial, it can also have impacts. In terms of listener services, KPFK's slow growth over the past few years has added more responsibilities to the small staff's daily workload. From a crisis six years ago when the skeleton crew here numbered just five people, to the present situation with a still-inadequate staff of 18 we've come to see that growth requires a sufficient infrastructure to sustain and serve it.

Good advice and guidance are needed now to manage our growth. And for those who read these notes regularly that's why I ask and continue to ask for those who have fundraising and development experience to contact me. Someday soon, we want to call together a committee of those with such expertise, who will support the station's financial plans.

Speaking of finances, our next fund drive will celebrate the sounds of self-determination, Afro American History Month (February) and women's month (March). The drive is scheduled for February 26-March 7. Over the past few weeks, we have gathered programming and special premium (tapes) together to echo the events which began last year and continues into 1990.

In the Program Highlights section of this Folio, you'll find a wonderful mix of materials. Among them is the 20th Anniversary of Roz & Howard Lauman's Folkscene, which reprises the best of their two decades with us. Our thanks and love go to them.

Shortly after you receive this program guide, we will gear up our training sessions for the fund drive. We invite your participation in the phone room administrators' workshop on Tuesday, February 20 at 6:45 PM.

The administrators' workshop looks intensively at our fund drive phone answering and the duties that go along with riding herd over this activity. This is the session in which we train new and veteran volunteers to help us during the ten days where we sing for our support. We practice phone answering, filling out pledge forms, going over premium lists and keeping a tally of hourly totals. We hope that you can help us out by attending the workshop. If you can make it, however, you can still come in and learn to answer phones during the drive.

I thank those of you who answered our December-January call for a response to the Federal Communication Commission's proposed 24 hour ban on "indecent language." Please note that the deadline for public comments has been extended to February 20. If you have not yet done so, there is no better time than the present to express your feelings on censorship to the FCC. Thank you again.

And thank you for your continuing support of KPFK. May this New Year and the Chinese New Year bring you good health, good fortune and good sense.

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

When the People Determine...

ASSIGNMENT: NICARAGUA-The people of Nicaragua will determine the future of their government on February 25. The upcoming elections in Nicaragua have attracted international attention. Pacifica Radio will present a weekly series of 30-minute programs from Nicaragua, which will be broadcast on KPFK on Wednesdays at 7:05 AM (January 31 - March 7), and rebroadcast on Saturdays (February 3 - March 10) at 11 PM. In addition to complete coverage of the Presidential, legislative and municipal races, Pacifica's reporters will travel throughout the country, bringing reports on social conditions which affect the political process. The reporters will be Larry Bensky (who won the Polk Award for his coverage of the Iran-contra Hearings), Tara Siler, Chuy Varela and Julie Light. The executive producer is Bill Wax.

FOLKSCENE: 20 YEARS OF SOMETHING DIFFERENT-When the people determine their own tastes, they may come to an appreciation of great music which is often unavailable from the big recording companies or the commercial radio stations. Join Roz and Howard Larman as they celebrate 20 years of broadcasting on KPFK with a special 20-hour weekend edition of the program, February 3 & 4, from noon to 10 PM.

Black History Month

REDEFINING OURSELVES: THE 10th ANNIVERSARY OF FAMILY TREE- When the people determine, we may choose to redefine ourselves. The producers of Family Tree will present special programming in celebration of the 10th anniversary of their program. These special programs will be broadcast February 13, 14 & 15, beginning at 7:00 PM, and February 17 at 10 PM.

NEW SHOES IN OLD FOOTPRINTS: LEADERSHIP IN THE BLACK COMMUNITY-When the people determine, what kind of leadership will emerge? Leadership in the Black community will be the topic of a live (via satellite) nationwide discussion organized by Ohio State University. The program will be broadcast on Midweek, on Wednesday, February 14 at 3:30 PM.

A BLACK WOMAN SPEAKS-An Inner City Cultural Center production, directed by Bernard Jackson, features the original poetry of academy award nominee Beah Richards. This program is made possible by a grant from the Los Angeles Cultural Affairs Department. Produced by Maricel Pagulayan. It will be beoadcast on February 28, at 8 PM.

Winter Fund Drive

Special programming during the Winter Fund Drive will include highlights from our ongoing coverage of the world wide movements for self-determination and democracy, including Eastern Europe, South Africa, Latin America and China, as well as movements for change on the home front.

International Women's Day

A celebration of the lives, thoughts and art of women determining their future in the world today. We'll present special programming on March 8, from 9:00 AM to 8:30 PM (with a break for the Pacifica Radio News at 6 PM).

The Global Forum

Political and religious leaders from every region of the world gathered in Moscow in January, for a global forum on the environment and development for survival. Among the speakers at this historic gathering are Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachov, U.S. Senators Clairborne Pell, Al Gore & Dave Durenberger, Zimbabwe's Natural Resources Minister Victoria Chitepo, oceanographer Jacques Cousteau and astronomer Carl Sagen. It will be broadcast on March 22 & 29 at 7:30 PM.

On the Cover

Our cover illustrates several upcoming programs. There will be special programming on the late Huey P. Newton on his birth day (February 17), International Women's Day (March 8), and the 20th anniversary of Folkscene (February 3 & 4). Throughout the fund drive we will look at movements for self-determination, including the changes in Eastern Europe as symbolized by the opening of the Berlin Wall (photo by Bill Thomas).

Meditations on an Election

An analysis of the upcoming elections in Nicaragua, by Larry Bensky, an award-winning journalist who will be covering the elections for Pacifica Radio (See Program Highlights).

Politics means elections. Elections affirm democracy. Thus runs the sacred socio/political mantra of our lives in the United States, drummed into us as soon as we begin to touch such topics in school, and reinforced as recently as each night's television news.

Of course, this simplistic dictum avoids the fact that there are elections, and there are elections. In the Soviet Union, people have been voting for years. Voter turnout, we're told, is nearly 100%, and the process legitimizes popular rule. But, until very recently, there's been no choice of candidates, the selections having been made beforehand by a ruling elite. In South Africa, they have a choice of candidates. But the voters are pre-selected to eliminate the country's black majority entirely. In each case, the country's rulers will tell you that "democracy" has been served.

Then there are some countries — El Salvador, Vietnam, and the Dominican Republic — which have staged what authors Edward S. Herman and Frank Brodhead call "demonstration" elections, under U.S. tutelage. These charades are used by the U.S. government to legitimize a ruling elite. Equally as ominous, in other countries — Chile, Panama, Uruguay, Argentina, Spain, Brazil, and Greece — voters in this century have found their choices vetoed by militant forces, most of whom concoct some populist ideology which they perceive as democratic, too.

And then we come to our own prototypically "democratic" elections in which, increasingly, fewer and fewer voters bother to participate on either national or local levels. People can hardly be blamed for this. It's hard to pretend that popular participation matters in elections which revolve around obscene amounts of money being used to purvey mind-manipulative images having little or nothing to do with the realities of candidates, issues or the responsibilities of office.

An electoralism very different from any of these is being developed in Nicaragua though, as usual, you wouldn't know it from the typical "Daniel Ortega — Violetta Chamorro horse race" coverage it's received so far in the United States media.

The ruling Sandinista party in Nicaragua, as has often been observed, came to power unready, in many ways, to exercise it. An unexpectedly rapid rout, in 1979, of the brutal Somoza dictatorship, the Sandinistas' uneasy alliance with business and middle class elements eager to replace Somoza's personal fiefdom with some less vicious, though hardly revolutionary, governance structure, the divisions within the Sandinistas themselves along ideological lines about who, or what, might lead a transformed society; and above all, the many ways, ranging from economic disruptions to mass murder, by which the United States government's "bi-partisan" political consensus relentlessly resists self-determination in this hemisphere — all of these are essential parts in understanding contemporary Nicaraguan history.

It should also not be forgotten that all of the Sandinistas' political actions take place against a background of widespread tragedy. There is hardly a household in Nicaragua which has not been sorrowed by death, maiming, or destruction since the beginning of the liberation struggle against Somoza. "Voting" in Nicaragua is not like taking half an hour off to visit a neighborhood school or garage to wade through ballot choices before everyday routine resumes. As they vote February 25, people will be looking over their shoulders at history, and looking all around them with apprehension at the present, in which they continue to suffer terrible economic, as well as psychological, terrorism at the hands of the United States' many-tentacled ten-year war waged by the Reagan-Bush surrogate army, the contras.

Money is a critical factor in any election. At least nine — and possibly as much as twenty — million dollars have been allocated by the administration/Congressional interventionist consensus for meddling in the Nicaraguan election. Another ten million dollars will be slushed in from conservative political groupings in such widespread corners of the globe as West Germany and Venezuela. While some of this money — supposedly to be spent on benign activities like voter registration and poll watching, much of it will doubtlessly bleed over into support for Violetta Chamorro's coalition, a grouping which includes a wide range of opportunists with nothing in common politically except an eagerness not to be part of the Sandinistas' innovative political process.

Researchers like Holly Skar, author of the definitive Washington's War on Nicaragua (South End Press, 1988), have identified fifteen key U.S. organizations meddling in the February 25th contest. (See Washington Wants to Buy Nicaragua's Elections Again — Z Magazine, December, 1989.) The Resource Center (Box 4506, Albuquerque, New Mexico, 87196) has published an equally thorough analysis of the National Endowment for Democracy in their Winter, 1990 Bulletin. The NED, a taxpayer-funded organization created in 1983 for the purpose of "democracy building," is in fact involved in lavishly funded, partisan support of opposition puppet candidate Violetta Chamorro, a woman of no visible administrative or political competence who has betrayed, through her alliance with the contras and their backers, the one virtue she supposedly possesses: loyalty to the anti-fascist politics of her late husband.

What is the effect of these colossal U.S. government and private conservative expenditures — over $10 per voter, in a country where the daily wage is less than a dollar? "In the Barrios," the Bulletin reports, "there are reports of give-away parties by the opposition. Driving about in new Toyotas, Via Civica (the opposition's U.S.-funded campaign organization) teams have reportedly distributed Kool Aid, sandwiches, T-shirts and caps to people registering to vote. There have even been reports that the choice of Chamorro for the UNO presidential campaign was paid for with U.S. dollars. Ramiro Gurdian, a member of UNO's far right wing, backed another candidate for the coalition's presidential slot. After the nomination, he complained that votes for Chamorro were sold for $10,000.

All of this relatively overt expenditure for manipulation and bribery can be expected to be accompanied by extensive covert actions funded by, and executed through, the CIA and its many tentacles at home and abroad. When Nicaraguans voted in 1984 — the election in which 67% of the voters elected "dictator" Ortega president — the process was certified as as remarkably free and fair by numerous international observers. But the CIA and the State Department diverted attention from the result by creating a fake "delivery" of Russian jets to the Sandinistas. The record of Oliver North and Elliot Abrams' "Project Democracy" is replete with examples of such propaganda tactics — as well as murderous violence — directed at destabilizing Nicaragua. It would be naive in the extreme to think that these forces for intervention have been stopped completely by the pathetically inadequate investigations and prosecutions done in Washington in the wake of the Iran-contra affair.

What can we therefore expect from the covert crew at Nicaraguan election time? There are many events in recent history which give us strong clues. On a relatively benign level, the Nicaraguan people will be subject to an anti-Sandinista media barrage of unprecedented strength. While people in the United States with even a casual interest in such matters probably think that Nicaraguan media is dominated by state-run (and therefore Sandinista) outlets, the reality is different. Thanks to lavish CIA expenditures, Nicaraguan territory is penetrated by 75 radio and television stations broadcasting mostly from Honduras and Costa Rica. (Nicaraguan radio reaches only 60% of the national territory.) The use of false reports, biased news reporting, disinformation and propaganda is extensive on these stations. The most powerful of these, Radio Costa Rica, was formed by the State Department and funded by the U.S.I.A. In addition to foreign-based stations, one Nicaraguan station, Radio Corporacion, broadcasts information of a distinctly pro-contra bias. And, of course, there is the wildly sensationalist daily newspaper La Prensa, which is subsidized, to date, with over $800,000 of U.S. taxpayer funds.

We've already begun to witness an even more ominous aspect of electoral destabilization from George Bush's merry men. Election rallies — dating back to July of 1988 — have been interrupted by violent bands of paid provocateurs. U.S. media reports then emphasize the "brutal" intervention of the police ("Sandinista troops") to restore order. In a country where economic hardship brought on by U.S. government economic and military policies is endemic, one can expect fairly easy recruitment of paid provocateurs to continue.

Money to influence — if not destabilize — the election process is flowing into Nicaragua in other ways. The contras have made it clear that they intend to serve as armed intimidators during the election — and Congressionally backed contra funding, ludicrously labelled "humanitarian," continues unabated. (Should the Sandinistas decide to react militarily against this threat, one can expect a dutifully sorrowful U.S. State Department/media condemnation of their chronic penchant for violence. And NED slush fund money, as previously noted, is being laundered for good old fashioned vote buying through the recruitment, at the pitiful rate of one dollar per day, of people to distribute small free items (T-shirts, snacks) to impoverished voters.

On another familiar level, there is evidence that polling and exit polling will be used to destabilize the electoral process. Polls commissioned by such right-wing, Washington-based organizations as the International Foundation for Electoral Systems will attempt to influence the electorate by showing a close election, or opposition candidates leading. Then, should the Sandinistas win, the polls can be used to discredit election results as fraudulent.

There is, of course, the possibility of even more severe disruption of Nicaragua's election, as the recent invasion of Panama ominously shows. (The cutting off of the many vital supplies being routed through Panama to Nicaragua in defiance of the U.S. economic boycott was a not inconsequential intentional side effect of that U.S. incursion. Bush administration officials no doubt speculated that, on the eve of Nicaragua's election, resultant further economic hardship in the country might hurt Sandinista support. The Sandinistas' odd alliance with the otherwise unsavory regime, and person, of General Noriega is largely explained by this situation.)

Nothing would be simpler for the CIA and its stable of destabilizers than the creation of another fake supply of weapons from the Sandinistas to the Salvadoran guerrillas; or another simulated cross-border incident into Honduras; or the assassination (remember who wrote the manual on such matters!) of a Nicaraguan or foreign political figure. Any of these events might be used to cause sufficient disruption — up to, and including invasion — that elections would be impossible to hold.

The Sandinista mass-based groups range from neighborhood watch committees (CDS) to trade unions to youth groups to women's organizations. Themselves a coalition of opponents of privilege and wealth, the nine-member Sandinista directorate (for which Daniel Ortega, far from being a dictator, is more like a moderate spokesperson) have proven flexible to the almost impossible pragmatic degree, considering the needs imposed on them by unrelenting U.S. government pressure. February's elections can be seen, in this context, as only the latest difficult challenge in the Sandinistas' long struggle towards defining a process in which progress for their, and the world's, suffering people will be assured outside of conventionally corrupted, electoral norms.

A BLACK WOMAN SPEAKS-An Inner City Cultural Center prod.
directed by Bernard Jackson, features the original poetry of academy award nominee Beah Richards. "I should think that if we were to examine the role, the proper or customary function of women in the theater of life, we could more adequately determine the accuracy or inaccuracy of roles played by women in the world of make-believe. It has been mediatory to explore these contradictions and redefine the terms of the woman Black." Ms. Richards has many credits in film, television and stage with perhaps her best-remembered performance in James Baldwin's The Amen Corner. This one-hour program blends prose and verse with original music performed live by singer Mel Carter and musicians Larry Nash, Dirl Recaler, and Nedra Wheeler. Music composed and directed by Inner City's Bernard Jackson. This program is made possible by a grant from the Los Angeles Cultural Affairs Department. Produced by Mancel Pagulayan.

CROSSINGS -A Pacific Asian American Women Writers West production, featuring the original work of poets Momoko Iko and Chung-mi Kim. This half hour production is a collage on the Asian American and immigrant experiences of women. Momoko Iko, a nisei, born in Washington state, was evacuated to Heart Mount concentration camp from 1942-1945. Her credits include stage and television. Chung-mi was born and raised in South Korea. Having worked in as a producer/director, she came to the US. She is currently producing new works of California poets for television. This program is made possible by a grant from the Los Angeles Cultural Affairs Department. Produced by Emma Jean and Mancel Pagulayan.

CITYWATCH-East Los Angeles, with its predominantly Latino neighborhoods, is fighting for political representation. Whether the courts find in their favor or not, the women of the Eastside have been making their voices heard on issues that matter to their communities. Join us for a special International Women's Day edition of CityWatch, when City Councilperson Gloria Molina and Juana Gutierrez from the Mothers of East Los Angeles join your host, Nancy Clark, for a look at the battles being fought and won on the streets and in the homes of East Los Angeles.
